DOWNSIZE À DEUX

YOU'LL NEED An 8- to 15-pound medicine ball (or dumbbell) and two identical bands (of any resistance, with or without handles). Oh, and a partner: Fitness pro Michael Curry of Stronghold Fitness in West Los Angeles designed these total-body slimmers to try with your better half or a friend.

HOW TO DO IT Perform two or three sets of 12 to 15 reps of each exercise on nonconsecutive days, adding reps as you get stronger. Hang in there for a month "and you'll see major body changes—fat loss and head-to-toe toning," Curry assures. You'll like your new body so much, you'll feel like sharing it!

WORKS SHOULDERS, BACK, ABS, BUTT, LEGS

Stand back-to-back with partner and lower into a squat with knees over ankles and weight on heels (maintain squat throughout). One person holds ball with both hands at chest level; the other person holds hands at chest, ready to receive ball. Twist right as partner twists left, passing or receiving ball (as shown). Switch directions and pass back or receive ball to complete one rep.
